PHILOSOPHICAL PONDERINGS

I spent the last two months trying to live the lifestyle that I have built over the past 3-4 years one last time, but it didn't work out. I realize now that what I had in Atlanta was a very good thing but it was always going to be temporary, and while I still have bits and pieces, trying to have some sort of "last hurrah" just didn't really play out. It's officially time to let go of my old life as I knew it and figure out how tf I'm gonna rebuild. That rebuild feels like an insurmountable task that fills me with dread though so ahhhhhhhgaf.

SHI THAT HAPPENED

Good

- I got a moped scooter for basically free from a millionaire uncle
- My brother and I went to Six Flags and rode every single ride
- I got dinner with several college friends and caught up with them
- I signed my lease for my apartment in DC and it's not too expensive

Bad

- Girl I was talking to in DC said she doesn't want to date right now
- My brother and dad keep arguing over pointless shit
- Spending like 8 hours a day on YouTube/Instagram/Marvel Rivals

NIGHTMARE OF THE WEEK

I was the DJ for a 50th birthday party recently and I told one of my family friends that I was starting my job in October and she told me she was confident they would take the job away before I start and that I needed to start interviewing again for another job. Thanks for the nightmare fuel Poonam Aunty.
