BROWNTOWN

Kunj recently asked if I had a contact for a fake cuz he had a friend graduating HS this year. I had only one initial response: Browntown.

Circa 2017, a new org came onto the campus of UGA called Beta Chi Theta. It was a South Asian fraternity. The brothers were friends with the India Cultural Exchange (ICX) exec board members, so together they made a silly little GroupMe titled Browntown to get Indian-Americans on campus together.

Because people kept throwing parties and inviting the whole chat, more people joined the chat. One fateful day, some UGA kid invited his GT friend into the chat, and within a year, the chat went from 400 people in Athens to 800 across all of Georgia. By 2021, when I was added, it was at 2500. By 2025 when I graduated, it was at 4000.

People realized it was a quick way to get things done. Need to find a sublease? 4000 indian kids. Need homework answers? 4000 indian kids. Need a fake? 4000 indian kids.

SHI THAT HAPPENED

- Work is the epitome of "we are so back", my senior associate took on that horrible cloud computing shutdown, and I got tasked to build some AI thing that makes me look very smart
- Went to director's house for the weekend and met whole team, W for no hookah bar + in hotel bed by 12am!!!
- Brother just came into town! Going to have a good weekend w him and his gf
- Got new running shoes after consulting with Kunj - definitely going to run more now... surely...

BROWNTOWN CONTINUED

Unfortunately, I just checked, and sometime after I graduated, they kicked me, as was procedure every year for all the uncs.

But it was a community. It was honestly a great case study in the power of people helping others out without expecting anything in return.

Kunj, I hope your friend finds his way into Browntown, and I hope he enjoys all of the benefits that this Indian-Georgian community provides. Just tell him to take it easy at the IC parties, or he will get tased, and all 4000 indians won't let him forget it.
